Safety Instructions:

- Before use, ensure that the belt and the connecting elements are undamaged and function properly.
- Do not use the belt near sharp edges and ensure that it is not pulled over sharp edges to avoid damage.
- To prevent injuries caused by high tensile forces, the belt must be used correctly and must not exceed the maximum tensile forces of 400 daN (direct) and 800 daN (in the strapping).
- Do not expose the webbing to high temperatures or aggressive chemicals for long periods of time. The temperature resistance is between -40 °C and +100 °C.
- The belt should not be used for transporting weights that exceed the permitted load.
- Carry out a trial run to ensure that the clamping and connecting elements are working properly.
