- The boxes are not designed to be used under water or in damp environments. There is a risk that they will lose their structure if they become excessively damp.
- The boxes should not be used for transporting sharp or pointed objects, as these can damage the boxes and cause injury.
- The boxes should be stacked and stored neatly to prevent them from tipping over or collapsing, which could lead to injury.
- It is recommended not to overload the boxes to prevent them from tearing or collapsing during transport.
- Keep the boxes away from children to minimise the risk of strangulation or suffocation due to improper use of the boxes.
